

PROGRAM OBJECTIVES

The focus of this program is on the introductory knowledge and assessment skills needed to care for the entire spectrum of antepartum, intrapartum, and postpartum patients, including newborns.

Registrants may sign up for either the complete course or only week (s) that are relevant to their learning needs.

Our virtual conference will be a hybrid of pre-recorded sessions you may watch in advance, and live sessions during which participation will be available & encouraged. Relevant recorded sessions should be watched prior to the live sessions on the same topic in order to reap the full benefits of the course. Please be prepared to listen, ask questions, and engage with the speakers and other students.

This course is designed to provide didactic education only, and does not certify competency in clinical practice. NWPRN recommends this program be used in conjunction with individualized precepted clinical experience according to the requirements of your individual institution.

The virtual classroom will take place via Zoom. Recorded session links will be sent to your email approximately one week prior to the session start date, as well as live session links. CEUs will be granted based on attendance in live sessions and viewing of recorded lessons.

Please be sure to have microphone capability on your computer or device.

By participating, you are agreeing to recording of sessions, and the future use of these recordings as deemed appropriate by NWPRN. If you do not consent, please notify a team member in writing.
